Growth is what franchising is all about, and Entrepreneur's Fastest-Growing Franchises list identifies the franchise brands with the greatest unit growth in North America over the last year, based on the data they submitted for the most recent Franchise 500®.

The fastest-growing ranking is based on the net total new franchise units added in the U.S. and Canada from July 2022 to July 2023, as verified by Entrepreneur magazine, with ties broken based on percentage growth.

This ranking is not intended to endorse any particular franchise, but rather to provide a starting point for your research. Due diligence includes thoroughly reading a company's literature and its Franchise Disclosure Document, calling and visiting existing franchisees, and consulting with an attorney and an accountant. Here's where slowing down makes sense: You should only buy a fast-growing franchise after you've taken the time to conduct a careful investigation.

Costa Oil - Eaton received a 5 star review. "First time there definitely going back services is great. The guys are very respectful. Definitely going to have to recommend it to several other people. Thank you."

QUICK LUBE NEWS

Electric vehicle company Fisker's stock plunged more than 40% in after-hours trading on Wednesday as investor concern about the company's ability to stay in business intensified.

On Wednesday, the Wall Street Journal, citing people familiar with the matter, reported that Fisker had hired restructuring advisers to work on a potential bankruptcy filing.

Fisker declined to comment on the report, but earlier this month, the EV maker warned that it might not have enough money to survive another year.

In its fourth-quarter earnings report, released in February, the company said there was "substantial doubt about Fisker's ability to continue as a going concern."

At the time, Fisker said it was in discussion with an existing investor about possibly putting more money into the company to keep it afloat. The automaker said it would also lay off 15% of its workforce to cut costs.
